WANT TO MOVE BEREA COLLEGE

To Suitable Location In This County Near Hopkinsville.

IT IS NOW IN MADISON.

Propose to Build Up An Industrial School and College
For Negroes.

Rev. James Bond, formerly pastor of the colored Congregational church of Nashville, was in the city this week looking for a suitable site for the location of the colored branch of Berea college near Richmond. The legislature of Kentucky recently prohibited the education together of white and colored students at Berea college and the board of directors plan to erect in the state a branch college for negroes. A tract of 2,000 acres of land would be required within a few miles of town for industrial purposes. The school would have probably 800 pupils. Phil H. Brown, the colored editor, who is interesting himself in the movement, says 28 colored boys and girls from Hopkinsville are away this year attending schools and colleges in other cities. The location preferred would be on the L. & N. north of town.

JUDGE S. W. HAGER WILL SPEAK THIS AFTERNOON

BIBLE CONFERENCE.

Yesterday was another interesting day in the Bible Conference. At 10 a. m. Dr. Walker spoke. At 11 a. m. Dr. J. C. Masse preached another sermon on "The Holy Spirit." At the 3 o'clock service Rev. Julian S. Rodgers expounded the Scriptures.

At 4 p. m. Dr. W. A. Nelson preached another of his series of sermons. At 7:30 p. m. Dr. Masse again preached on "The Holy Spirit."

The program for to-day has not been fully announced.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Nelson will preach to the Old People, of any and all denominations. Dr. Nelson is himself nearly 70 years old, or 70 years young, as he puts it, and his address will be of surprising interest to elderly people.

The usual evening service will be held to-night.

The attendance has been good at all of the meetings, increasing every night. New speakers will arrive for the rest of the conference, and some of those here will remain until it ends next Wednesday night.

Rev. Julian S. Rodgers.

Until a few years ago this popular evangelist was a journalist. It was during Rev. Millard A. Jenkins' pastorate at the Tuttnal Square Baptist church, of Macon, Ga., where Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers were members, that he left the editorial staff of the Macon Telegraph, entered the ministry and went to Chicago to the famous Bible Institute then presided over by Dr. Torrey, the now evangelist of world-wide fame. Mr. Rodgers became pastor of the Second Baptist church of his own city, but so great became the demand for his services in such meetings as these, as an evangelist, after a couple of successful years he resigned for this larger work.

Rev. W. H. Smith.

Dr. W. H. Smith, of Richmond, Va., will arrive in the city to-morrow and will preach to-morrow night the foreign mission sermon. Dr. Smith is known as one of the leading preachers of the South. For over 12 years he was pastor of one of the foremost churches of Georgia, the First church of Columbus. Now he has had the larger work of traveling from city to city, preaching in the interest of world-wide missions. He will easily take his place among the able preachers already here, and all who hear him to-morrow night, will, we are sure, have no cause to regret it.

Large Audience is Expected.

JUDGES S. W. HAGER.

Democratic candidate for governor of Kentucky will speak at the court house this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

He will address the people on the issues of the state campaign and everybody should come out and hear the next governor of Kentucky.

SHOT HIS BROTHER.

Negro Boy in Jail for Crime
In Tennessee.

A negro boy named Alex Bausley shot and probably fatally wounded his brother Saturday night at Legate, Stewart county, Tenn. He was located at his father's home seven miles north of this city Monday and brought to the city lockup. He stole a horse upon which to make his escape, which he claims to have sent back, but the police at Legate say the horse is still missing. An officer from Dover was expected last night to take Bausley back for trial. He is about 30 years old and quarreled with his brother over an old debt.

BARNES-ANDERSON.

Pretty Church Wedding Solemnized Last Night.

Mr. Lucien Barnes and Miss Mayme Anderson were married last evening at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. A. C. Biddle performed the ceremony. The young couple entered the beautifully decorated church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. N. S. West. They were preceded by Mr. Will H. Fyke, the best man, with Miss Luro Boyd, the bridesmaid.

A large crowd of friends witnessed the pretty ceremony. They were driven at once to the residence of the bride's father, Judge A. H. Anderson, with whom they will make their home. A reception will be given them to-morrow night.

The pretty bride who is an attractive and most popular young lady, is a graduate of the city High School.

Mr. Barnes is an efficient book-keeper for the Forbes Manufacturing Co. and is a son of former Sheriff J. J. Barnes.

Ellis-Barlow.

Fred Ellis and Miss Minnie Barlow were married Friday night near the city. Rev. A. C. Biddle performed the ceremony.

DAY RIDERS IN DAVIESS

Two Hundred of Them Wait
Upon the Tobacco
Buyers.

VISIT OWENSBORO

Equity Farmers Have Parts of Two Crops Still on Hand.

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 22.—Two hundred men rode into this city at 10 o'clock this morning and took the city by surprise. The invaders were tobacco growers and they came for the purpose of visiting the different buyers and admonishing them not to buy the 1907 crop of tobacco which they have already commenced to do.

After doing this in a body they divided into squads of twenty-five and went out through the county on diverging roads to the county line which was reached about noon.

They then crossed the country and returned to another road. At every farmhouse along the way they halted and the spokesman went to see the men in charge and solicited him to pool. Careful memoranda are said to have been made of all that was promised or not promised.

All Strangers.

The men who came thus mysteriously and without previous warning were all strangers in this city and county. It is presumed, that they were from the counties of Hancock, Ohio and McLean, which surround this (Davies) on the east and south and in which nearly all of the tobacco of the crops of 1905 and 1906 have been pooled, as were the two crops in this county also. In this county the pooled crops have nearly all been sold while in other counties the tobacco is still unsold.

The growers of the outlying counties believe that if the tobacco of this county grown this year and which amounts to twelve or more million pounds be sold or "dumped" as it is called, their three crops may remain on their hands and this would reduce them to bankruptcy, as most of them are the poorer class of growers. This danger has caused them to assume a very ugly mood in recent weeks and some threats have been made.

The situation has been intensified by the fact that the American and other buyers have sent their agents out into the country and they have talked boastfully of their success in buying and of the coming rupture of the American Society of Equity.

The Business Men's Association held a meeting last night for the purpose of trying to prevent alarm, but it had no information before it except that a committee of farmers would visit the city to confer with the buyers.

The Instructions.

The Louisville Times correspondent succeeded in getting hold of a copy of the instructions sent out to the leaders of the different squads, and here are the pointed sentences it contained:

"Start out to reach the Owensboro court house at 10 o'clock. Endeavor to have your squad number twenty-five. The men all be the most discreet of your local. Have no stragglers. Do not allow them to carry deadly weapons. Permit none to smoke or have intoxicating liquors. Allow none to use profanity or obscene language. Have one spokesman and let him be the best speaker in the squad. Join with other squads at the court house, and go in a body to visit all the principal buyers, especially the American and Imperial company. Halt at convenient distance from factory, but view of it. Send speaker and one delegation as witnesses to the factory or to its office. Divide into squads and go out over

The Weather.

For Kentucky—Generally fair Tuesday.

The rains for football have been so much improved that $3 for this season only 7 boys have been killed and 11 injured.

Curt Jett, the Breathitt county assassin, now serving a life sentence for the murder of Jas. B. Marcum, has professed religion and joined the prison church Sunday.

Judge Thompson in Federal Court at Cincinnati Tuesday handed down a sweeping decree forbidding the issuing of strikes by the officials of Free-men's Union against the United Typothetae of America.

Another earthquake was recorded on the government instrument Monday, which was supposed to be in the Indian ocean. This is three in a week, but so long as they do not shake land they do no harm.

Beta are no av to even that the bottom will drop out of the Wilson campaign before the election. Even Broncho Franks did not even make a ripple on the placid surface in Christian county. Republican politics is a chronic case of "nothin' doin'."

President Roosevelt received a great welcome in Nashville Tuesday. Everywhere he was greeted by big crowds who cheered him vociferously. The President made two addresses and visited the Hermitage and passed a wreath on the grave of Andrew Jackson.

This is the first time in many years that the Democrats have not been forced to fight for everything they got in Hopkinsville. This year they are on Easy street, with no opposition, no kickers, no knockers and no factions in the party. The Councilmen will go into office with the fullest performance of duty, with the city's regard the one thing in happy Hopkinsville! We invite you to come and be with us, but you will have to wait until we build some more houses.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure, send for circular free.

The News Leader, the Republican organ at Springfield, Ky., has a dispatch for McChord for railroad commissioner, saying that Tarlton, who got on the ticket by petition, is not the nominee of the Republican party. Speaking of Hon. C. C. McChord, the editor says: "It is gratifying to those who believe in the just regulation of railroads that the press and various commercial organizations have everywhere put their stamp of approval upon Mr. McChord's official acts, and, irrespective of party, are demanding his reelection."

Stuyvesant Fish has secured a postponement of the Illinois Central stockholders' meeting until December 18. The Harriman people agreed to the adjournment, although they had previously been anxious to push matters as rapidly as possible. The proposition came from the Fish side, who had 250,000 votes to Harriman's 210,000 of the proxies, with the letters U, V, X, Y and Z to count. There were not enough votes in these letters, all counted for Harriman, to overcome Fish's lead. From this it is evident that Mr. Harriman was beaten unless he could bring into the contest some portion of the 280,751 shares against which Judge Ball issued the injunction. Harriman will now have to surrender to Fish or fight the temporary injunction in the courts. Fish claims the victory and is correspondingly happy.

Compass Points and Health.
A quaint theory is that of a French mystic, who holds that the four points of the compass have an influence on human health and well-being. Traveling west, asserts this authority, induces melancholy; traveling eastward brings cheerfulness; southward, humor and irritability; and northward, calmness. It is a question of electrical currents, and the influence is felt not only when traveling, but also when at home. The best posture for working is to face either north or east. In these positions you receive positive waves of electricity, the negative currents coming from the other two points, south and west. Even the sleep is improved, it seems, if the foot of the bed be turned to the north or east. To sleep in the contrary position induces nightmare and general uneasiness.

A Rough Passage.
Jacob Hohe, the head of Philadelphia's phonograph school for parrots, said the other day:
"There are worse things than a swearing parrot, and one was brought over on a German boat last month. His owner, a sailor, swore that this raved bird knew no profanity, and a lady bought him."
"But she had to bring him to me. The parrot, though he didn't swear, did evidently spend most of his time in shipboard in the ladies' saloon, for what he would say was this:
"For hours at a time he would rook and gasp and bleat as if it never stopped, and then he'd sing out, 'Steward—bucket!'"

COL. JOHNSTON TOOK A BRACER.

Confession of a Newspaper Man Whose Nerves Needed Settling.

HAPPENED BACK IN 1875.

Reminiscences Of An Old Time Convention In Hopkinsville.

Col. E. Polk Johnson is writing a series of articles for the Louisville Times on "Old Newspaper Days," in one of which he has this sketch:

"In 1875, Col. James B. McCreary, Gen. John S. Williams and Col. J. Stoddard Johnston were candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky, and the spirited contest offered good opportunities for a correspondent. In those days the county conventions were not held simultaneously as afterwards became the rule, and each county committee called the convention for such day as suited it. This gave the candidates opportunities to attend many conventions, and press their claims. I recall having reported the proceedings of the convention held in Hopkinsville, which was attended by Gen. Williams and Col. Johnston, and which was "a warm member" from start to finish. I have no recollection of another county convention which made so much unnecessary noise. There was a large empty box in the court room upon which some enterprising gentlemen played the Devil's Tattoo unceasingly, while others yelled an accompaniment. I do not recall that there was any ill-feeling, but the perils of the candidates were enthusiastic, energetic, noisy, and they let themselves be heard. They stood upon the Judge's seat, upon the benches and chairs and finally upon the small table upon which I was making notes. When the convention adjourned the paper upon which those notes were made bore the imprint of the nails in the shoes of the men who had danced at my elbow as I wrote. As I was transcribing my notes at the hotel a gentleman whom I had never before seen came into my room and introduced himself, saying that he wanted to know a man who could keep cool enough in that political tempest to take notes to make a correct report of the proceedings. When I showed him the prints of the shoe nails on my notes he said: "Oh, put that down and come along with me. You surely need a bracer after that experience, and I want you to take one with me." I trust my prohibition friends will not be shocked at the statement that my new-found friend and I took that "bracer." As has been stated several times before, all these incidents "took place a long time ago, before everybody died," as good old Uncle Chop Smith used to say, and being older, and I trust wiser, they could not happen to me to-day. The convention about which I have been writing gave the vote of Christian county to Col. Johnston, but neither himself nor General Williams secured the honor of a nomination. Col. McCreary being the successful candidate. Those were the days when the Confederate soldier was playing a leading part in Kentucky politics. McCreary, who became Governor, was a Lieutenant Colonel in Gen. Morgan's command; Williams was a Brigadier General of cavalry, while Johnston was a Colonel and Assistant Adjutant General on the staff of Gen. John C. Breckinridge. The post bellum manufactory for turning out Generals, Colonels, Majors and the like from the ranks of men who served as Sergeants, Corporals and Privates in the Confederate army had not then begun operations. I had not an affectionate regard for my old and true comrades in the army, but have never been favorable to the making of Generals out of all sorts of material years after the war has closed. The future historian will have difficulty in finding what became of us old fellows who carried guns in the ranks. There don't seem to be any of us left even at this date. For the matter of that, I am soon going of a Colonel myself, having been appointed to that position on the staff of two Governors, but from a soldier's point of view, I am rather proud of Sgt. Johnson, who had the honor of being in command of his company when the war ended."

TOBACCO MEN

Have Meeting Here for Conference and Business.

Several officials of the Tobacco Association met here Monday by arrangement to discuss the injunction suit at Elkton and other matters. Hon. Jos. E. Washington and Hon. S. Walton Forgy were here and both made speeches at the meeting, which was held in the city court room. Additional prize contracts were awarded to Henry Hayes, at La Fayette; L. H. Franklin, at Herndon; L. McComb & Co., and A. O. Dority & Co., at Pembroke. A storage contract was also awarded to the Pembroke Storage House. The Hopkinsville headquarters were moved from Second street to the Bonte building on 8th and Water streets.

One important ruling made by the meeting relates to the purchase of tobacco by one member from another. It was decided that such sales cannot be made, except where the tobacco was raised on the purchaser's own farm.

TAX NOTICE.

My office will be open until 8:00 p. m. from now until the first day of November for the purpose of receiving taxes.

All taxes that are not paid by the first of November will be turned over to the delinquent tax collector and the fiscal court will give him 40 cents on the dollar for collecting same.

New all tax payers can readily see that it is to their interest and the counties also for everybody who have also people employed who have to pay taxes to encourage and assist those who need attention in that direction to pay their taxes, for if they wait until after November first every man who pays a poll tax will have to pay $2.47, otherwise if he should pay it before the first of November it would only cost him $1.50, and as the county pays the delinquent tax collector 40 cents on the dollar for collecting the taxes, the county would only get 96 cents for each poll collected after it is termed delinquent. So you can readily see that it is to your interest to propose to the tax payer whom you have employed to let you pay his taxes when you come in to pay yours and make it up in the settlement.

The Alaska-Yukon Pacific Exposition

Activities grow apace in preparations for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. With such a director-general as I. A. Nadeau, things are pushed along with a decisive "honk, honk" that there is no disregarding. If they cannot get things done during the day they do them at night and everybody is at it. The preliminary exploitation of the exposition has been one of the most effective campaigns ever made. It seems impossible to find anyone who does not dream of the long-looked-for trip to the coast and the pleasure of seeing the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

A large number of the exhibitors at the Jamestown Exposition are already making preparations for occupying places on the lovely peninsula which fronts on Lake Washington. The story of Alaska and the development of the great Pacific Northwest will be told in this exposition in a way at once distinctive and uniquely attractive. No one who knows "the men behind the guns" can doubt the splendid and perfect success of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.—Joe Mitchell Chaplin in "Affairs at Washington," in National Magazine for October.

What's In McClure's.

In their November issue the editors of McClure's have more than justified the recent raise in the price of the magazine. The articles are varied and vital, and there is a new note of distinction in the fiction. George Kennan's article on criminal government should arouse the public conscience. It was editorial wisdom to follow this incredible picture of sordid selfishness with Carl Schurz's delightful memories of the great men of the heroic period of our history. His intimate stories, pathetic and humorous, of Lincoln, Sherman, and Grant, leave the reader with a kinder feeling for the race. Ellen Terry's contribution to this number gives the story of her first night as Portia, when she experienced the "awe-struck feeling which comes to no actress more than once in a lifetime, the feeling of the conqueror." Burton J. Hendrick begins his series on the great fortunes of America and the men who made them. Harry Orchard ends his autobiography with the most interesting chapter of his extraordinary life. This number is a feast of fiction.

TARGET PRACTICE

Of Third Regiment To Be Conducted at Earlington.

Arrangements have been made for the Third Regiment of State Guards to have target practice on Loch Mary, at Earlington.

The Earlington soldiers, G. company, opened the ball and made their records on Monday, the 21st. They were followed in the order named, by D. company of Hopkinsville, on the 22nd, together with headquarters, field and staff. Next will be E. company, of Madisonville, on the 24th; B. company, of Henderson, on the 25th; A. company, of Bowling Green, on the 26th; C. company, of Owensboro. The companies on the Illinois Central Railroad will shoot at home, targets having been shipped them for this purpose.

The target practice will be only up to and including the target at 500 yards. That is the soldiers will shoot at 200, 300 and 500 yards only, cutting out the 800 and 1,000 yard ranges.

Capt. Frank D. Rash will act as executive officer, Capt. Paul F. Freese as range officer and Capt. A. G. Chapman, of Hopkinsville, as quartermaster, commissary and ordinance officer.

For Sale or Rent.

All real estate belonging to the estate of James D. Ware, such as farms, factories, warehouses, dwellings, etc., will be sold or rented at once. For full particulars call on or address the undersigned or Douglas Bell, at Hopkinsville, Ky.

E. B. LENO, Exr.

consisting of Edward Everett Hale, Hamlin Garland, Elbert Hubbard, Anne Warner, William MacLeod Raine, William Hamilton Osborne, Layne Beecher Stowe, Dan Bead, Henry George, Jr., and others, the magazine ranks with the very best of the month's publications.

Once again the cry, "Wolf, wolf," is abroad in the land. "Is the wolf at the door?" "No," says James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. His article, "Why Prosperity Will Continue" is a comprehensive review of industrial conditions from the pen of a man of affairs, not a mere theorist. "Is there a dual Wall Street?" as Mr. Van Cleave suggests. Elbert Hubbard pays tribute to a man who might have been poet laureate of England when he writes of "William Morris as He Seemed to Me." It is a heartfelt acknowledgment of the splendid abilities of that many-sided man, poet, artist and artisan.

Mrs. Ward's Novel.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' new novel, "Though I Go Part," begins in serial form in the Woman's Home Companion. The publication of any novel by the author of "A Singular Life" and "Gates Ajar" is a notable event, and the announcement of this new novel in the Woman's Home Companion is sure to be a source of gratification to Mrs. Ward's thousands of admirers. The scene of the story is laid in a fashionable "North Shore" resort near Boston, the country that Mrs. Ward knows and likes best. The opening chapters give promise of a highly dramatic and interesting novel.

The American Magazine.

The November American Magazine is rich in importance and interest. Ida M. Tarbell tells another "He Knew Lincoln" story. Lincoln Steffens begins a new serial, "The Mote and the Beam; a Fact Novel." Prof. William James, the foremost psychologist of his time, writes of "The Powers of Men." He tells of the keys which unlock hidden energies and stir men to great achievements—such keys as love, anger, despair, crowd-contagion, Christian science, conversion, prayer and so on. Woods Hutchinson begins his new series on giants and dwarfs. The pictures are as good as going to a circus. Ernest Poole tells stories of the million new readers of the news who come to this country from abroad each year.

ATTRACTION NO. 1

At Tabernacle, Tuesday Night, October 29.

The Elma B. Smith Company will be attraction No. 1 at the Tabernacle, next Tuesday night, Oct. 29. Miss Smith, as an impersonator, has few equals. She is said to be unquestionably the greatest imitator of children, birds and animals now before the public. The company has traveled the United States from coast to coast, and has been pronounced to be the best popular concert company now traveling. The "Wooster, Ohio" Republican says:

"The usual large audience was drawn out Thursday evening when the Elma B. Smith Company gave an entertainment in the University Lecture Course. The members of the company proved to be entertainers of the first class. Miss Elma Smith proved herself one of the finest readers ever before a Wooster audience. Miss Smith's imitations are simply wonderful, her monologues 'Roll Call at School' being as clever a piece of work as one would wish to hear."

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

There are a great many phases of women's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon. But by far the greater number of such cases are amenable to correct medical treatment.

No surgeon in the world has relieved so many women from the different phases of ailments peculiar to womanhood as Dr. Hartman through the use of Peruna.

Here follow many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womanhood.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman cures annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

Not one in a thousand of these fortunate women report their success. Of those who do write testimonials, only a very small per cent. are ever used in public print.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will cure every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial. Her chances of relief are many that any woman would be foolish to neglect an opportunity of relief.

Very Precarious Condition.

Mrs. Lottie Ward, 611 Tracy Ave., Kansas City, Mo., writes: "A few years ago my health was in a very precarious condition, the result of womb trouble and general debility. I suffered a great deal and was glad to try Peruna when it was recommended to me so highly. I found it very beneficial. In a short time the pains grew decreased and in two months I was completely restored. I am pleased to endorse Peruna."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The Carnival Suits of 1906 Heard Wednesday.

Tuesday was given up to a trial of the case of Paul Boynton vs. the National Fraternal Union, who sued for a settlement of the business done by Boynton's dog show at the carnival last year. Jas. B. Allensworth was special judge in the case and was about to dismiss the case when the plaintiff dismissed it without prejudice. Other cases are pending for claims aggregating $300 or $500 against the carnival managers. Yesterday the motion of the defendant in the case of Geo. K. Putman for a new trial, was set for a hearing.

Castlen-Pyle.

Mr. Andrew J. Castlen and Miss Joe E. Pyle were married Tuesday night at the home of Mr. Johnson, on South Virginia street, Rev. A. C. Biddle officiating. The groom came here from Owensboro about two months ago to work for the Kentucky State Co. He is a middle-aged widower who has two grown children, a married daughter in Bowling Green and a son in Owensboro.

The couple are boarding at the Payne boarding house on Seventh street.

SHOT IN THE LEG.

"Scrap" Occurs at Entrance of Colored Carnival.

Roy Bowles, col., was shot in the leg last Saturday night, while attending the "White City" carnival. It is said that Bowles attempted to enter the grounds without paying the admission and Henry Lander, col., who was acting as a peace officer, was called. When he arrived Bowles, it is claimed, fired on him and the shot was returned. The wound is not a dangerous one.

Some More New Slang.

A negro waiter paralyzed a crowd of jolly customers seated at table in a St. Louis cafe the other day by shouting out the following order:

"Two burning shames, two mugs, two half mugs and one nigger." The bartender was staggered for a minute, but finally produced two cigars, two glasses of beer, two small glasses of beer and one drink of gin. The crowd breathed easier and "Oss" smiled that superior sort of a smile peculiar to the great and learned.

The Royal Month and the Royal Disease.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative—consumption.

Munlee, Ind., Oct. 21.—A Big Four train east of this city ran into a flock of sheep and killed 130 head, but the train remained on the track and no person was injured. The engineer does not understand why a serious wreck did not follow, saying that he would rather his train would bump against a herd of cattle than one of sheep, as the wool from the sheep wraps around the machinery and frequently causes a wreck. The sheep were owned by John Truitt, who places his loss at $1,000.

RACE TRACK TOUT

In Luck.—Finds $9,000 When Down to His Last Penny.

New York, Oct. 21.—Stanley French, a turf follower, rode home from the Belmont Park track, to a home in Sheephead Bay, Thursday evening practically penniless. His wife had given him just about the last dollar and his luck had faded him. On the same train was Hedy McDaniel, a trainer for Louis Ca. who carried a wallet containing $9,800. French awoke from a nap on the train to find the wallet a corner of the car, but McDaniel did not discover his loss until last night. French did not know how much money he had found until after he had jokingly told his wife that the dollar she had given him had made a fortune. She counted the bill and discovered to her utter astonishment that it consisted of bills of large denomination. French then told her that he had found the money and they mutually agreed that it should be returned to the owner, so he be found.

The next day French met turf acquaintance who told him McDaniel's loss. French regarded that he must have the lost bank and forthwith he returned the wallet and its contents over to Hedy. The latter gave French a $1 bill, but French said that if Hedy could give him a job he would prefer that to the reward. Hedy could not do so, and French left the cash.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American tourist, Corla, and the young English lieutenant, End, Gerard Anstruther, and his Corla, wife, Marina, are on their way to the Pacific, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is the hand of the girl he loves, End Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Alaska to Seattle on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and the Corla are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitates a postponement of the journey.

CHAPTER II.—Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He decides an American detective and plans to beat the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Charlita leave a secluded villa at Nice to which the party is to be taken in a yacht.

CHAPTER III.—Suspicion is created that Marina is in league with the Corla. A man, believed to be Corleto Danella, is seen passing the house and Marina is thought to have given him a note. She refuses to explain to Barnes which fact adds to his latent suspicions.

CHAPTER IV.—Barnes plans for the safety of the party are learned by the Corla. The carriage carrying their party to the local landing is followed by two men, are supposed to be Corleto, they try to murder the American. The cook on the yacht—a Frenchman—is suspected.

CHAPTER V.—The yacht is followed by a small boat. The cook is seen giving signals to the boat. Barnes attempts to throw him overboard, but is prevented by Marina and End.

CHAPTER VI.—The cook is found to be innocent of the supposed plot and is forgiven. The party arrive in Nice and find Lady Charlita and her daughter Maud domiciled in the villa rented with Barnes' money. Barnes is anxious to find that Count Corleto is at Nice and is acting the role of admirer to Lady Charlita.

CHAPTER VII.—Barnes and End make arrangements for their marriage. CHAPTER VIII.—The net tightens about Barnes. He receives a note from La Belle Blackwood, an American adventuress and hears that Edith Enory, his detective, has been murdered by the Corla. He learns that the man supposed to be Corleto, who followed the party on their way to the boat, was Saliceti, a nephew of the count, and that Count Corleto had been in Nice for some time prior to the party's arrival. The count warns Barnes not to interfere. End unless he would have her also involved in the murderous feud.

CHAPTER IX.—Barnes and End are married. Soon afterward the bride disappears. Barnes discovers she has been kidnapped and taken to Corsica.

CHAPTER X.—The groom secures a fishing vessel and is about to start. In pursuit of his bride's captors when he hears a scream from the villa, and runs to hear that Anstruther's wife, Marina, is also missing. Barnes is compelled to start for Corsica without delay and so he leaves the search for Marina to his husband while he goes to hunt for End. Just before Barnes' boat lands on Corsica's shore Marina is discovered hiding in a corner of the vessel. She explains her action by saying she has come to tell Barnes to rescue his wife from the Corla.

CHAPTER XI.—When Barnes and Marina arrive in Corsica he is given a note written by End informing him that kidnapping is for the purpose of entrapping Barnes, so the vendetta may kill him.

CHAPTER XII.—Barnes and Marina have unusual adventures in their search for End. They come in sight of her and her captors in the Corsican mountain passes just as night approaches. They seek shelter from a storm the couple enter a hermitage and there to their amazement they discover Zamosco, the foster father of Marina, who was supposed to have been killed by De Belle's soldiers, and for whose death Barnes had been vendettized.

CHAPTER XIII.—Barnes learns that Marina's husband did not kill her brother. Many wrongs are righted. Barnes is surprised in the hermitage by Rochin and Romano, the two devoted bandits, who had been searching for him to murder him for his money. The bandits attempt to take away Marina. Barnes dashes out the door. The bandits pursue him, but as they reach the door both are laid low by Barnes' revolver. Members of the Bellacocia enter and Barnes is honored for his great service to the community in killing the hated Rochin and Romano. The release of End is promised.

CHAPTER XIV.—Barnes is conveyed in triumph to Buonanno. He acquaints the Bellacocia with Saliceti's plot against her husband and the people are instructed to vote against him at the coming election. Barnes is taken to the mansion of the Paoli to meet End. Marina receives a telegram and starts for Bastia to meet her husband.

CHAPTER XV.—A Little Surprise for Mr. Barnes. The American springs up the steps into the house again, and rapidly ascending the stairway to the second floor, sees a very faint gleam of light shining under the doorway of the great guest chamber in the front of the old Corsican mansion.

He knocks almost reverently and a faint, sweet voice answers timidly: "Come in."

His heart lighted by hope and love, his whole form trembling with anxiety to take his bride within his arms, he thought that she is his and safe making his trembling eyes very tender, the eager bridegroom opens the door.

Reclining on a lounge in a white robe her head luxuriantly turned from him, the long, beautiful, almost disheveled hair streaming over her shoulders, is his rescued bride.

She is in a nook of the big room well from the faint candle light.

He passes an arm about her slender waist and kisses her passionately. Her lips respond as sweetly and clingingly as ever did those of a young bride. But even in the midst of the kiss, Barnes starts back with a sharp, amazed cry of almost horror: "My God, Sally Blackwood!"

And the lady turning to him so that the candle light shines upon her radiant features that are almost laughing, says archly: "Yes, I'm all here, La Belle Blackwood. It is a little surprise, is it not, my ardent bridegroom, Mr. Barnes of New York?"

"My heaven, how did you come here?" Burton's voice is hoarse with amazement.

"How?" In Cipriano's swift yacht and afterward on a Corsican pony."

"And why?" An awful anxiety has crept into his voice.

"To save my life!" Burton's tone is incredulous.

"Yes. I guessed from Cipriano that they were trying you to Corsica for your death. I came here to warn you."

"And Mr. Ruggles?" remarks Barnes, still astounded.

"Oh, Ruggles quarreled with me; got jealous of you or Cipriano, I don't know which. I was tired of Dan. Then biazze Cipriano, he is so funny."

"He said to me: 'My dear, you want to even yourself with the women of New York?' I had told him you were such a gallant knight you wouldn't even kiss an old sweethearts because you were going to be married to a pretty-faced, fair-haired, blue-eyed English ingenue, and so, at Cip's suggestion, I came over to Corsica by Cipriano's fast yacht yesterday."

"But where is End and by what devil's chance did you take my bride's place?" asks Barnes.

"Oh, the Corsicans—they wanted you to follow them. They expected that. They didn't intend for you to get your bride, at all events not until you had given them several chances to kill you. So I was to be the bride."

"Sagone waiting for them when Saliceti arrived per sebedule on the Sea gull. I saw them from a distance. They brought your bride off the yacht and all right. Great Scott, she has a fine nerve, that young lady of yours. Haughty as a captured goddess."

"By the Eternal have they killed her!" Barnes is white to the lips.

"Oh, not yet anyway. Saliceti, with two friends, buried her on a long way ahead of me through the mountains. Some dark-eyed gentlemen escorting me gave you a distant chance to see us. You were never on the same road as your wife after you left Vico—you were pursuing me!"

"My God!"

"It was such an exciting affair," she half laughs; "something so out of the ordinary, an adventure so unique, I liked to do it. Word was brought you were in pursuit up the mountain path. I knew they wanted to ambush you. So I told you to give you warning at the inn of Guagno. I hope you got it."

"Where did they take my wife?"

"I shall not tell you—at least, not without a bribe. Shall I have a farewell kiss for the information?"

"Never!"

"Oh, Burton, don't kill me!" she gasps, for Barnes' hand, in his anger and rage, is nearly on her white throat.

"Plash, you are not worth it."

Uncompromisingly he tears himself from her and commands: "Tell me where I will find her now; tell me where I can go back to her and dare to kiss my wife's lips, knowing that I am true to her. Tell—think what you once were when your father and mother in Ohio loved you and believed in their little girl. By heaven, I know there is good in you. Sally—only let it come out, just this time, be honest."

"Just tell me where I can find my darling, so that I can rescue her in time, for you know these are villains who have stolen her from me."

"A being of impulse, La Belle Blackwood wrings her hands, her head droops and she sobs: "Then, Burton, I'll forgive you and tell you. There is a little good in me—I'll tell you all I know of your bride, which is very little. I think the road they took her was north of the path that we followed. But where End is, I know not."

"Then Saliceti! I'll tear it from him."

"I hardly think he can tell you. His followers were strangely frightened and embarrassed when the Bellacocia young men demanded your bride from them, and an invasion, substituted."

Then, not the least fearful look on Barnes' face, she cries: "Don't waste your time here; ask the man you know."

"Ah!"

"Cipriano Danella! The head of this affair didn't want you to find her—not until they killed you, if it were possible. Oh, this Corsican count who is playing with you is a great man—not a boy."

"This is all you can tell me? Is it the truth?"

"Yes, as God will never forgive me—yes."

"Very well," says Barnes, "I thank you for the information. I will now see that you get out of Corsica safely."

"How?"

"By eluding the great Bellacocia, will do for me."

off. This Bellacocia who kills gentlemen as if they were flies! That's greater than even a pork packer, a cattle man or a Count Danella, isn't it? I thank you for the bandit, Mr. Barnes."

Barnes runs down the stairs and steps out upon the porch.

A happy-faced young man with elated air and disheveled clothes is spurring bravely up the avenue, a native boy trotting beside him. Seeing the American, he calls out: "Glad to hear you and End are again yachting arm to yachting, though you look lovely enough, Barnes of New York."

"Awaking with a start, Burton looks at him and gasps: "Edwin, you here?"

"Easy enough. I found a letter left with Lady Charlita's housekeeper by my wife to be delivered to me this morning, which told me Marina had come to Buonanno. So I rushed into Vico. By good luck I found Alingham's yacht was coming straight to Ajaccio. For my sake he put on steam. I made the 25 miles up here from the Corsican capital on a horse, arriving before they extinguished the lights in the inn. There they told me of my noble wife and how Marina's words had banished our vendetta from Buonanno."

This is spoken as he springs off the horse, tosses the bride to the boy, and runs up the stairs. "Marina is inside, I imagine," he says, and calls through the doorway.

"Marina left for Bastia over an hour ago," says Barnes.

"Why did you leave for Bastia?"

"A telegram," answers Barnes, "purporting to come from you stating that you would be at that place to-morrow morning. Notwithstanding her fatigue, she went on by carriage to meet you."

"A telegram! Impossible! Bastia is at the north end of the island. I arrived at Ajaccio, the south end. Besides, I saw after her carriage."

Edwin is interrupted by a short cry from Barnes: "Cipriano Danella!"

With an exclamation Anstruther asks hoarsely: "Do you think he has sought to do with this?"

"I am pretty certain of it. You do not realize that fellow's passion for—"

"For my wife? By heaven, I'll kill him!" and the young English officer looks round to call the boy who has come with him, but the urchin, being eager for bed, is already out of hearing with a shrill, suddenly he cries:

"Barnes, you're not going to leave End here unprotected," for the American is almost running down the avenue. Edwin calls after him:

"I haven't found my wife."

"The lady upstairs, whom I heard?"

"Was not End, it was that infernal La Belle Blackwood, and yet I forgive her, for she told me the direction she thought End had taken, and as they half trot, half stride down the avenue under the chestnut trees, Burton epitomizes his adventures of the day.

"What are you going to do now?"

"Get horses and follow your wife. She is the one to which we have a claim. We must prevent her falling into Danella's hands. Perhaps I'll pray God—in following her we may find also the way to my wife."

"Because Cipriano is the real brains of this infernal outrage."

As they reach the gateway of the grounds they are abruptly intercepted. One of the young Bellacocia, hidden in a tree, springs out to them, gun in hand, but recognizing Mr. Barnes, the young man says: "I am one of those watching that Saliceti trouble you. I let this man pass because I saw he was a foreigner."

"That's all right," replies Burton, "but could you show me the telegraph station and where to get horses?"

"Inside Hotel Mouvras in the main street is the telegraph station," answers the young man, "and a stable to hire horses is at the inn."

"Thank you. Also I want to see your chief, if he hasn't already gone to the mountains."

"Is it important?"

"Then Signore Antonio will be here in a few minutes," answers the young fellow and speeds off through a neighboring lane.

The two hurry to the inn, but Buonanno has gone to bed. His houses are all unlighted, their doors are locked. In this land of the vendetta, even at the present, people hesitate to open for unknown travelers knocking on the portal.

There will be no chance to telegraph to Bastia or any way station on that road before to-morrow morning. It is nearly an hour before they succeed in arousing a somnolent hostler at the inn stables, who mutters all the horses are tired and would have a night's rest.

But stimulated by a gold piece placed in his sleepy hand the man finally awakens sufficiently to saddle two horses, which he says are the liveliest of any in the stable.

On two surly beasts they dash up to Marina's home and find waiting on its steps the great bandit and one or two of his men.

"I have a favor to ask you, Signore Bonelli, in addition to the others you have done me; that you will escort to the yacht at Sagone the lady within an hour, and get her safely out of Corsica."

"Oh, you needn't ask that, Mr. Barnes of New York," cries La Belle Blackwood, stepping airily onto the veranda. "I have already petitioned the great Bellacocia, and I think he will protect me against any man; won't you, Signore Bonelli? The softness of her sweet voice is a caress."

"Baptist, will not it?" says the magnificent man, his hawk's eyes flashing as they look upon the loveliness of the entrancing American adventuress. "Count on Bonelli to his heart's blood."

Then, with a bow, he says: "But why are you compelled to leave your wife, Signore Barnes?"

"This lady is not my wife."

"What! Not your wife! Grand Dio, whose spouse is she?"

"Nobody."

"Diavola suprema!" cries the great bandit, a tremendous joy flying into his face. "And you leave this loveliness?" he adds, as if he cannot understand.

"Her loveliness is not mine, Signore Bonelli," remarks Burton, coldly. "Besides, it is a matter of life and death that calls me. This gentleman—"

Barnes introduces Edwin—"is the husband of Madame de Paoli, who has been lured from here by a lying telegram to Bastia. We journey to protect her against a design upon her safety—upon even her honor. Lieut. Anstruther, unused to the language, would be of little use."

"Design against it a honor of the daughter of the Paoli?" snarls Bonelli. "Impossible! I will go with you upon his errand myself."

But like enchanting tones of Sally Blackwood make him pause; she is pleading: "What, and desert me among your wild mountains?"

"No, this best I go not," remarks the bandit chief. "Gendarmes, with me in your company, would be an embarrassment, and they in their bungling way may doable and you. And your wife, where is she, Signore Barnes?"

"Still in the hands of Saliceti or his friends."

"They did not surrender her as they agreed?"

"No. They substituted this lady."

"No, diavola! Saliceti has tricked me! I proclaim a vendetta against Bernardo Eduardo Saliceti."

STILL FLOATING IN THE AIR.

Balloon Race Developed Some Long Distance Contestants.

HERSEY LANDED FIRST.

Beat the Paris Record By Two Hundred and Eight Miles.

St. Louis, Oct. 22.—Scattered through the state of Ohio, with one or two trailing in the vicinity of the Great Lakes and another last heard from in Catham, Ont., all nine of the big balloons participating in the second international aeronautic cup races were still in the air to-night.

HERSEY LANDED.

Caledonia, Ont., Oct. 22.—The balloon, the United States, of which Maj. H. B. Hersey, of the United States weather bureau at Washington, is the pilot, landed about twelve miles south of Hamilton, Ont., at 6:15 p.m. The United States crossed the state of Illinois, thence across Lake Michigan and Lake St. Clair to the middle of Lake Erie, when a change of wind carried it north into Canada to the place of landing.

The distance from St. Louis to Hamilton on an air line is approximately 620 miles. Therefore the United States traveled about 610 miles, which is far ahead of the record made in the European races by Lieut. Lahm, whose balloon won the international cup by sailing from Paris to a point in England 402 miles distant.
